THE CAR OF JUGGERNAUT.

Fanatics Believe to Be Crushed Under It to Gain Heaven.

In the third week in June, following a custom established over a thousand years ago, Hindoos by tens of thousands flock to Pooi, in Orissa, India, for the religious festival of Juggernaut.

From the temple the enormous car of Juggernaut is brought forth and dragged through the streets. It heads the annual procession of devotees of the god Vishnu, or Juggernaut, lord of the universe, whose image or statue, without legs and with stumps of arms, rests within the colossal car.

Hundreds of pilgrims harness themselves to the stout cables by which the car is drawn. As they pull the ponderous car on its clumsy wheels many work themselves up to a degree of religious fervor little short of madness. And fanatics attempt to throw themselves to destruction under the murderous wheels as a voluntary sacrifice to their idol. British civil officers prevent any act of suicide.

Hindoo believe that to gain the favor of Juggernaut opens for them the gates of heaven. Therefore in the days before the British occupation of India natives occasionally cast their bodies under the car to be crushed to a pulp, the belief being that self immolation thus would be speedily rewarded by entrance into paradise.

The car is forty-three feet high. Its wheels are each more than six feet high. A wooden cage around the top, an addition of recent years, keeps fanatics from jumping upon their idol within. Body and wheels are of wood beautifully sculptured and inlaid, and for the festival the car is draped with gold cloth.—London Mail.

Lucky Escape.

"Many years ago," says an Alabama congressman, "a son of Erin had the misfortune to be charged with stealing pork. Being without counsel, the court appointed a young sprig of the law to represent him. It was a poor effort made to defend the prisoner, and the members of the jury without leaving their seats returned a verdict of guilty. The court asked the prisoner if he had anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced. His reply was: 'Your honor, it is hard for a man to go to prison without a fair trial.'"

"You've had a fair trial," said the judge. "The court appointed counsel to defend you."

"The Irishman cast a glance at the young lawyer and muttered: 'Sure, an' if I'd had two such this jury would have hung me for murder.'"—Life.

Coals of Fire.

That the Cornishman does not always appreciate metaphor is well illustrated by the following story: A district visitor in a small town was calling at the house of a poor woman whose husband occasionally came home much the worse for liquor. "It's a terrible trouble, ma'am," the poor woman complained. "Many's the time I've had to sit out my bed and trapse [walk] over the stairs and open the door to an and car an [carry him] to bed. 'e bein' so drunk I can't mos' [almost] bade [bait] 'im to a jelly." "But," remonstrated the lady visitor, "you should try gentler means and heap coals of fire upon his head." "Coals of fire?" fancy that, now, and I never thought of it." Many's the time I've thought of it, but I never can get it to do me any good. — London Mail.

SUPERSTITIONS OF NINE.

A Number Conceivable in Ancient and Modern Speech.

Of all odd numbers the one which would seem to be the most conspicuous in ancient, modern and modern speech and in legends of all sorts, whether of the Orient or of the West, is the number nine. It is a multiple of three, and three is a very numerous and extraordinarily varied. Of old there were nine muses and also nine rivers in the infernal regions. In classical mythology we read of nine heavens and nine worlds, and the hydra had nine heads.

In mediæval times there were nine "worthies of the world," the places in this select assembly being differently allotted by different authorities, the usual division being three gentiles, or pagans, three Jews and three Christians. One of the "eldest English games is nine men's morris. It could be played either indoors or outdoors, on a folding board marked with the necessary lines and squares or on a board marked out on field or do. By stones or by cuts in the turf. I don't see they still play the game under the name of marshall.

Nine appears frequently in popular medicine. A Sussex collector referring to the very common rural belief in the efficacy of passing a ruptured child through a chestnut tree says that the patient must be attended by nine persons, each of whom should pass it through the cleft from west to east. A Perthshire record of 1623 refers to the preparation of three cakes for some medicinal purpose from nine portions of meal contributed by nine maidens and nine married women. Threads with nine knots and straws with nine joints are used for various healing purposes, while nine successive mornings are often prescribed for the performance of certain folkloric ceremonies.

The great Lambton worm, one of the best known of English dragon myths, had nine eyes and was fed from the milk of nine cows.

Again, the same number is prominent in various common phrases and proverbs. Nine tailors make a man. Queen Elizabeth is alleged to have once addressed a deputation of eighteen tailors with a "Good morning, gentlemen both!"

Every one knows that a cat has nine lives, while the "cat" that is used for the castigation of evil-doers has nine tails.

When Mercurio insults T'ball and the latter inquires, "What wouldst thou have with me?" the volatile but fiery partisan replies, "Good king of cats, nothing but one of your nine lives." Heywood, the proverb monger, has the saying, "A woman hath nine lives, like a cat," which will be news to most folk.

Three more examples may be given from a collection of applications of this remarkable number 9 which is not easily exhausted. Possession, we often hear, is "nine points of the law." A person who has paid some attention to his or her attire is said for some inscrutable reason to be dressed "up to the nines," while the most startling event is but a "nine days' wonder." The last phrase, though truer now than ever, was familiarly used, with many other still current forms of popular speech, in the days of Chaucer. — London Globe.

ARE IT ALL.

A wife had occasion to go out to women's votes meeting, so left a pudding in the saucepan for her husband. When she arrived home she went on with her washing and inquired how he'd got on.

"Very well," said he. "I thoroughly enjoyed the pudding."

"Good!" said the wife. "What did you do with the cloth it was boiled in?"

"Cloth, my gal?" said hubby as he abstractedly continued reading his paper. "Was there a cloth?"—London Illustrated Bits.

An Exception Noted.

Lawyer—Your uncle's will seems to be a perfectly legal document, such as will stand in any court. I can find no grounds on which to contest it.

Disappointed Nephew—But you must find some grounds. Where there's a will there's a way, you know.—Lippincott's.

A CUP OF TEA.

The Way to Bring Out the Real Bouquet of the Leaves.

To bring out the real bouquet of tea several things are indispensable. First, the water should be freshly drawn. Never use water previously boiled, for its life is gone. Second, the teapot should be made hot by dry heat if possible or else with boiling water.

The best sort of teapot is the made of unglazed clay. The Japanese make one of a dark red clay, often procurable at the ten cent stores. But the best are made by the Chinese of a reddish brown clay from the banks of the Souchien river. It is famous for drawing out all the sweetness from the leaves. There is no objection to a glaze outside the pot. But the inside, when unglazed, seems to have some chemical action on the brewing of tea which adds to its bouquet.

Third, the "time limit" makes or mars your pot of tea. Do not let the leaves lie aimlessly in the pot to give out the flavor at their own sweet will. But procure a deep porcelain receiver or strainer full of holes, such as comes inside blue and white Japanese teapots. Put your tea leaves in the strainer and be generous with them—they will repay you tenfold with a rise in spirits and general contentment of soul. If it does not fit use your feminine ingenuity and make a handle of cord. Never let metal come in contact with tea in the making.

At the very moment the water boils pour it on the leaves. Put the cover on for one-half minute, then pour out a cup of the tea. Empty that back over the leaves. Repeat this several times. Then pour the strainful of leaves up and down once or twice or until from the aroma you can detect the real tea flavor. In this way the strength of the tea is forced out before the tannic acid can mingle with it, and you have gained in less than two minutes a bouquet obtainable in no other way.

Take any unmixing black tea. Try the directions given, following the three conditions accurately, and you will find that you can make tea at 80 cents a pound taste like $2, while most people only succeed in making $2 tea taste like 30 cents.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

When $1,000 Looked Big.

Divide anything up into parts and you magnify it. A certain wise man took this way to give his wife an idea of how much $1,000 is. She had no idea of money. Her purchases were enormous. It happened one day that her eye fell upon a magnificent ring, and she coveted it. It cost $1,000. But what was $1,000 to her in comparison with the ring? Of course her husband consented to the purchase. What else could a dutiful, affectionate husband do? But he tried this method of educating his wife concerning the great price of the ring. He instructed his banker to send her the $1,000 in small pieces—pennies, dimes and quarters. In came the money, bagful after bagful. She never had such an idea of $1,000 before. When the money was piled before her it alarmed her. The price of the ring went up a hundredfold and was considered at once an extravagance which she of her own option abandoned.

The word tram is derived from a man's name, Outram—Thomas Outram. Outram lived in Derbyshire, England, and in the beginning of the last century he invented a peculiar sort of track that diminished the friction between wheels and roadbeds. These tracks of Outram's, though nothing like a trolley track, were called at first outstraws, then tramways, and when street lines and street cars came into existence they were dubbed respectively tramways and trams.

His Income.

The teacher of a Sunday school class in Wilkesbarre once put the following question to a new scholar: "What did Moses do for a living while he was with Jethro?"

There was a long silence, during which the other members of the class took occasion to "size up" the newcomer. The latter, however, was not dismayed. After due reflection he answered: "Jethro, ma'am, he married one of Jethro's daughters."

One Boy Knows.

A teacher tells of an experience he had recently. He was put in charge of a lot of boys one day and was trying to make them understand that all good comes from one source. As an illustration he told them of building a house and putting water pipes with taps in all the rooms, these pipes not being connected with the main in the street. He said to them:

"Suppose I turn on a tap and no water comes, what is the matter?"

He naturally supposed that some of the boys would answer that the water was not turned on at the main.

But they didn't. On the contrary, one boy at the foot of the class called out:

"You didn't have your water rate paid!"—London Mail.

Eighth Wonder of the World.

To realize fully the wondrous beauty of the Rainbow falls, Rhodoka, one must have time to linger and watch the ever changing scene. The depths of the chasm below are veiled from sight by the rising columns of spume—mist, and above the swirling abysses the sun glints and sparkles, wearing the drops into a magnificent rainbow. Three hundred feet below roar and boils the swirling flood as it emerges from the Belling Pot, rushing on down the steep gorge between towering cliffs of rock, narrow, serene and of unfathomable depth. One feels that Rhodoka is indeed three blessed to possess within her territories the eighth wonder of the world.—Arizona World.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight and Tuesday

Tomorrow week Don't forget the date.

Keep an eye out You may locate a Taft man who will be up for something in county politics later.

Face The Enemy

Mr. Taft's attorney general in Ohio has handed down the law. He says this practice of trying to maintain separate schools for the negroes and whites in that state must stop. It must stop right now, before the election, for all public schools must throw open their doors to both races. The same students must occupy the same seats. The children of both races must march in and out the building, in line. No dodging, or playing out, or trying to shun the B.P. culled children. They are both on equality in every respect, especially during trying times of electing a Republican president.

This is Taft's home state. Many negroes vote in that state. It amounts to something in political battles. Taft wants results above all things. He knows such a ruling will throw the blacks into line for him, and will have but little effect on those whites of Ohio who have been extending the helping hand to the negro for forty or fifty years, apparently.

For those Ohio Democrats who have stood for the party in many past battles, we are truly sorry. Wish they would come South.

The Southerner who votes for Taft in the coming election plants a seed that will sprout a thistle.

He goes on record against separate schools for whites and blacks.

By his vote he says that his wife, his daughter, his sister or mother, shall sit in the same rail way cars, shall sleep in the same beds in hotels, shall eat at the same tables in all the public eating houses, and that his children shall attend the same schools, with the negro race.

Any Southerner will fight you if you accuse him of doing this, and yet, when he casts a vote for Taft, he hands the Republican party the club to hammer those pernicious laws and practices into effect in the South.

The Republican party, as a party, stands for those laws.

There is no middle ground. You are a Democrat, or you are a Republican.

man who votes for Taft for personal financial reason, thinking that his conditions will be bettered thereby. He knows that it's a step toward a precipice the bottom of which is destruction and ruin.

We don't mean it will ruin the nation to have a Republican president. It will ruin the South when it votes the Republican ticket strong enough to enforce those Republican laws that prevail in the North. Deny that?

We believe the United States is a white man's country.

We know the Southern states are, and whenever the laws that control them are made by Republican politicians, it is time to let a mere matter of finance go to the devil and face the issue with a solid front.

If you are a Republican get in line, and be counted. If you are a Democrat, stand up for the party, for the Democratic party is a white man's party, thank God.

Seriously Cut

Sam Danwoody, who left Dothan Friday morning for his Florida plantation, had some trouble that evening with one of his negroes on the place in making a settlement. The negro slipped on him from behind, and stuck a knife in his jaw, bringing it across jugular vein, and on across the back of his neck, making a gash about seven inches long. The neck vein was not cut. Last reports were that he was getting on very well. The negro had not been captured.

Mrs. E. O. Quillen of Troy, who had been visiting the Misses McLennan, her aunts, left yesterday for her home.

No Great Loss.

It will be remembered that a year ago last Wednesday, the Knickerbrocker bank of New York closed its doors, being unable to stand a run which was made upon it. Fifteen other banks of that city were thus closed, within a few weeks, from the same cause. This was the beginning of a panic which was seriously felt in all parts of the country.

It may not be generally known that these sixteen New York banks have all reopened for business, and have paid their depositors in full, with one exception, and that bank has paid its depositors 90 per cent and will make another payment of 5 per cent this week.

Judge Carmichael Dead

This morning at about ten o'clock Judge J. M. Carmichael dropped dead at his home in Ozark. He hadn't been well for several days, and had been complaining. He had been the moving spirit in the fair recently closed there, and hadn't been well since.

He was one of the prominent men of Alabama. Was an old Confederate soldier and lost one arm in the cause. Was elected judge of probate of Dale county, then elected state auditor, following that he was circuit judge of this district for three times, and was again elected to the office of state auditor. Prior to that time he served on the board of convict inspectors, and in every capacity, he filled the office with credit to himself and the state.

He was the father of Archie Carmichael, speaker of the house of the last legislature, Charlie Carmichael, of Geneva, Malcolm Carmichael, of Liberty, and Mrs. W. H. Simmons and Mrs. Pauline Borders, of Ozark.

The funeral services will be held on Wednesday in Ozark.

A Man

When we enter the field of human life and endeavor it is varied, and has been the subject of discussion during all the ages. We believe with all the faith which we can control that the origin of man is divine. That another existence is his besides this one. If we casually look into history, we will observe that man is subject to influences some of which tend to lessen him as a human. Make him akin to the animals, even beneath them. A cruel, lazy, narrow, barbarous, mean, selfish, vicious, self-estimated, proud, system are gone.

an his far superior. He also may have some of the qualities but the tongue is usually member. Fortunately in an age in which the great are possessed with the nobler spirit, man, of which is aristocracy, the home desire for knowledge, and other humanizing influences will gain this goal man must be human. If the days work worries you, or if night is not one of repose, come see us we have some health food offer you. Don't wait until it's late and the reserve forces of the system are gone. Phone

PRESCRIPTIONS.

Reasons Why They Are Written in Latin by Physicians

"I don't see," said the man who was leaning against the drug store counter, "why a doctor can't write his prescription in English instead of Latin."

The druggist said, "You think, I suppose, that the doctor writes his prescriptions in Latin so it can't be read so easily—so the layman can't steal his trade and learn what he is giving him. But that's wrong. In the first place, Latin is a more exact and concise language than English and, being a dead language, does not change, as all living languages do."

"Then, again, since a very large part of all the drugs in use are botanical they have in the pharmacopoeia the same names that they have in botany—the scientific names. Two-thirds of such drugs haven't any English names and so couldn't be written in English."

"But suppose a doctor did write a prescription in English for an uneducated patient. The patient reads it, thinks he remembers it and so tries to get it filled from memory the second time. Suppose for instance, it calls for iodide of potassium and he gets it confused with cyanide of potassium. He could safely take ten grains of the first, but one grain of the second would kill him as dead as a mackerel. That's an exaggerated case, but it will serve as an illustration. Don't you see how the Latin is a protection and a safeguard to the patient? Prescriptions in Latin he can't read and consequently doesn't try to remember."

"Now for a final reason. Latin is a language that is used by scientific men the world over and no other language is. You can get Latin prescriptions filled in any country on the face of the earth."

where there is a drug store. We had a prescription come in here the other day which we had put up originally and which had since been stamped by druggists in London, Paris, Berlin, Constantinople, Cairo and Calcutta. What good would an English prescription be in St. Petersburg?"—New York Herald

Long Lived Trees

Brazilian coccoloba palms live from 400 to 700 years, and the Avuls a sort that the date palm frequently reaches the age of 200 to 300 years, says the Dundee Advertiser. Wallnuts oak, near Paisley, Scotland is known to be over 600 years old, and there are eight olive trees on the Mount of Olives near Jerusalem which are known to have been flourishing in 1099. The very old Fontaines Abbey York shire were old trees when in 1153 the abbey was burnt and a redwood in Mariposa, California, is a magnificent specimen. Barbad trees of Africa have been computed to be over 5000 years old and the deciduous cypresses at Chapultepec is considered to be of a still greater age. Humboldt said that the Dracena Drao at Orizaba, on Ixcarte, was one of the oldest inhabitants of the earth.

Laisssez Faire

Laisssez faire is a term met with frequently in books on political economy. It is not often used in conversation or in political speeches. It is a term that means to let alone and among economists it implies that policy which does not disturb the existing order of things but permits it to develop in its own way, trusting that society will in its own way and in its own time find a proper adjustment and balance for all its troubles.—Wall Street Journal

The Satisfaction of My Clothes Do Not Wear Off With their Newness

That's the way with some much-touted Clothing but when you buy a suit from me, you can safely count on getting one, and sometimes two, seasons of excellent wear out of it.

They're correct in style, too, and in all those little details that you can't see, but which help to proclaim them the ideal clothes for gentlemen.

But don't think that just because they're better clothes I demand a higher price for them. On the contrary they're cheaper. Cheap because they will always look better and last longer than the clothes you would get elsewhere at the same or even a higher price. In a word they're Hamburger Bros & Co. and Royal Brand Clothes. Suits $12.50 to $35.00.
